FURTHER ENLIGHTENMENT.-The author of 'Life in Normandy' has published at Edinburgh, a book descriptive of a sojourn among us during last year. He was much more favorably impressed with the Yankees than foreign arists generally are, and tells Lis countrymen od traits of character. Speaking of our soldiers, whom he visited, he says:

The people at home are thus described by him:

The American people are to be found at the lawn firesides, or at their several occupations, and, so far as I am able to judge, they are remarkably like people with what I am accustemed to curert at home. I like them. I found no ill-feeling toward England among them; they did not seem to dislike me. Unless snob, slaves, dollars, and savages set them by the ears, I fee no reason why John Boll should not live in peace with his family of fighting giants. If any one of them forgets his paternal duty, the rest will back the old un, and he is not yet played out for all that is come and gone.

In the closing chapter he relates the following eldent of his stay in the metropolis, though he nforms the render that the herojof the performance must not be taken as a representative of American character:

Tired and bored, I went to bed in the best mark e palace in the place. My door opened, and in walked a stranger without luggage. 'Sorr to disturb yon,' he said, 'but the hotel is very full, and I am come to sleep here." It was a double-bedded room with two beds in it; so in he rolled, and I thought no more of him till morning. He rose early and donned his clothes, and then a very subdued volce said: 'Sar, shall I use your bushes?' Not even in the Far West had I met with this being, but I had read of one like it in some book or other, and the toth-brush flashed into my mind 'Sir,' I said from my blankets. 'If you wilkindly use the brush with the long handle, I should prefer it.' Thank you sar,' he said, and did use it on his frowsty head. No sooner had a made his appearance at the door of the Astar o'clock, the General determined to take a drive about town and visit the park. No sooner had he made his appearance at the door of the Astar House than the thousands in the vicinity rent the air with simultaneons and prolonged cheers biodestly acknowledging the tribute thus given he entered his carriage and proceeded up Broadway and Fifth avenue to the park, stopping on the way for a few minutes only to make a friendly call at the house of William S Hillver, Esst, in East Fifteenth street. The scene as the carriage proceeded along the ronte was very animated, clowde followed it from the time of its departure from the Astor House, running, shouting, waving thats and bandkerchiefs, and expressing their gratinde and delight in every possible manner. The hour happening to be that one in which there is a general luli in business and Broadway comparatively quiet the cheers of the voluntry escort were heard some distance ahead, causing those at leisme in the hy-streets to rush hurriedly to Broadway, and those in Broadway ignorant of the carbe of the apparent tunnit, to step to the curb and await the approach of the exuberant crowd. However, none were very long left in ignorance as to what was coming for the words 'Grant!" ''Grant!' 'ran along the thoroughfares as if proclaimed by an ituishe hersid. At twelve o'clock the crowd in front of the hotel increased to thousands and it became evident that there was no possible chance of one-twentleth of them gaining entrance to the hotel even if General Grant were to remain there the whole day for that specific purpose. Loud calls were made for the General to come out on the balcony, in obselfence to which he at length made his appearance, but in hand. It is impossible to describe the discust and chagrin of the Seward men at the ring which the radicals had made around Grant. They squeezed in a man here and there, and got even a respectable delegation at the dinner table, but it was too plain that the allisit was arranged all on one side, and very bitter jealousy was manifested against the faction which was in propolizing the hero of the war for the defence of their offices in the Custom-house. Even in Old Tammany, where a little pow-wow of sachems was held under the anapices of Purde and Delivan, very bitter groans were vented, because they were excluded from their legitimate right to do honor to the man they had dreamed of making their Presidential candidate, before Mr. Lincoln and Seward headed them off by making him Lieutenant-Geueral. The return of General Grant to the Astor Heuse was followed by loud and continued cheering from the crowd, who had waited patiently for him. The General bawed courtecasty to the crowd, and again went into the parlor of the hotel.

THE ATLANTIC CABLE PREPARATIONS ON BOARD THE OBEAT EASTERN-SCIENTIFIC TESTS. TELEGRAPHIC NEWS. The London Telegraph of May 23d bas the The Coming Trial of Jeff Davis following interesting account of the prepara ions on board the Great Eastern for laying the cean telegraph cable: occan telegraph cable:

A visit was paid to the Great Eastern a few days since by a large party of the directors, friends, and it may be said that all who understood the preparations which they saw came away with a greatly strengthened confidence in the future of the new cable. Since Isse, when the first Atlantic line was laid, the advance that has been made by the scientific world toward comprehending electrical phenomena is very great. It has been said, by a man well ornified to speak on the subject, that electric science has passed, since that time, from its childhood to speak on the subject, that electric science has passed, since that time, from its childhood to its maturity. So far as the phenomena connected with long electric circuits were concerned, we had in 1558 no knowledge whatever. The instruments in common use were unsaited to receiving signals through a great length of cable; the necessity of providing for the conductor an insulation so perfect as to approach an absolute condition was inadequately appreciated. The best preliminary test for a long cable had not been devised, and the old Advante telegraph was laid without having been subjected to any searching test on shore. Everybody had advice to give concerning the minagement of the wire, but no one recommended the pnecautions which subsequent experience has shown to be necessary. When the signals legan to fail the battery jower was angmented, and electro-magnetic induction coils, which rapidly helped on the destinction of the con-10FFERENCES BETWEEN 1858 AND 1865. the Victoria gallery, to "speak up." The ol cable, however, js dead and gone; part of it he been picked up and applied to ignoble uses, as a raceborse uset his work may be put into the shafts of a Hansom; part of it has been abad ime, in the "dark un fathemed caves" of the leep sea. Let us turn to the practical present larkiess, is litree, and cold out in those with a set to vest of where the cable is being shiped and watched there is every sign of keen, what is being done, you see something may have this—that scientific foresight of the high set order directs every step and that the thick larry rope, coarse and rough to appearance which like coited away more water in the tank of the ship, is monufactured, scanned, and tested with as much care as the piecest optical is strument in an astronomer's observatory, or it strument in an astronomer's observatory, or t most delicate apparatus of fragile glass ever a plied to the careful experiments of chemistry.

THE SCHNIFIC TEEPS.

It seems impossible that there can be any fault in the Atlantic cable when the Great Eastern goes to sea. To say nothing of the test applied to it at the manufactory, it is tested not along after it has been taken on hoard, and curing its delivery into the ship. As soon as length is brought alongside, one end is connected with the coils already on board, and the other end with the instruments in the testing reom. The circuit is thus made through the who e extent of the coil, the portion on board and the portion alongside. The process of hauling in then commences, and the insulation is continuously observed. The instruments in invation in the case of the new Atlantic code comes so near to perfectlen that this rough tarry rep is a scientific wonder.

The last dying pulsation of the old Atlantic cable was forced through it by means of a gilvenic battery consisting of two hundred and forty cells. The submarine telegraph from London to Amsterdam is habitaally worked with a battery of titty cells, and such a battery is commonly used for the other submarine lines of Europe. Signals have been repeatedly sent through more than thirteen hundred miles of the cable now on beard the Great Eastern by means of one cell. Galvanic enrrents so feeble that they could not have been felt by the hand, and might have been passed harmlessly through a circuit completed by the operator's tongue, can be used to convey messages along a length of cable that would very nearly stretch from London to St. Petersburg. Over needle instruments, such as those in ordinary use for be powerless.

To record such faint pulsations of electricity it is necessary to use Professor Thompson's mirror galvanometer. This beautiful instrument consists of a mirror about the size of a fear-penny pleas, made of microscope glass, and so thin that it weighs only a grain. On the back of this mirror a minute magnet is fixed, and thus supplemented it is suspended by a silken fibre in the heart of a coil of wire, so that any current passing through the coil deflects the magnet and the mirror along with it. A ray of light reflected by the mirror along a scale.

The machinery for paying ont is not vet on board, but is heing put together at the Greenwich works. The process of immersion will take about a fortnight. The beginning of the shore end will be laid by a small vessel, which will meet the Great Eastern about twenty miles from the Irish coast. The eable will then be passed on board, connected with that in the great tanks, and the blg ship will begin her voyage. To the unitiated this process of cutting and joining the cable appears very mystenious, but the engineers who are used to the work face it without any hesitation. The joints do not really endanger either the in-ulation or the strugth of the cable, as wherever they are made the external and conducting wires are spliced along a considerable length—sometimes not less than thirty yards—and the gutta percha carefully put on in separate layers, firmly pressed together by means of warm froms. The completeness of the joint is lested by laxing it in an insulated metallic vessel containing waver, and ascertaining, by means of tests applied to this vessel, whether any electricity escapes from the joint as a current is passed along the cable.

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE—Dr. Gav had, for some time, missed the hay from his burn, and was satisfied that it was stolen. With a view to detect the thief, he took a dark lantern and stationed himself near the place where he supposed he must pass. In due time, a person whom he knew passed along into his barn, and quickly came out with as large a had of hay as he could carry upon his back. The doctor, without saying a word, followed the thief, and took the candle out of his dark lantern and truck it into the hay upon his back, and then retreated. In a mement the hay was in a light blaze; and the fellow, throwing it from him in inter consternation, ran away from his perisater consternation, ran away from his perish The doctor kept the affair a secret, even from

The doctor agreed to forgive him on condition of his never repeating the offense. In. Sprague's American Unitarian Pulpit.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14; 1565. THE APPELLATE JUDGESHIT.-The name of adge William Sampson has appeared at the need of our columns for several days past as a and the great sagacity and courage that was ndidate for the Judgeship of the Court of Apals, to fill the vacancy created by the late reeval of Judge Joshus F. Bullitt. We placed be name of Judge Sampson in that position thout reference to any partisan motive, but from the greater consideration of his fine qualications for the office to which he aspires. dge Sampson is not disposed to make the race for a seat on the Appellate Bench as a polician or partisan, believing, as he does that the duties of the position are wholly disconpected from political disputes. He takes the high and enlightened ground that the Judgeship is not properly a subject of contest between political parties, but should be considered solely with reference to requisite qualifications. From hat stand-point he presents his claims to the people of Kentucky. Judge Sampson does not agree with us on the amendment question, but he is a true and thorough friend of the Government of the Union, and eminently fitted for a seat on the Appellate Beach. To remove the impression entirely from the popular mind that Judge Sampson now stands the attitude of a partisan, we think it proper to exclude his name from the list of He gave us our first lessons in the field in the didates at the head of our editorial column, and this morning we place it in a different position in our paper.

Brigadier-General Ward is also a candida for the Appellate Judgeship. Both Ward and Sampson are our old personal and political friends, and, adopting a course hitherto pursue by us, we leave the decision of the contest to the people themselves, upon the high ground that the indicial station is and should be wholly ndependent of party politics. Gen. Ward as a oldler has done great service to the country. and his ability as a lawyer is of cuite a high order. These centlemen will, we presume, pre sent their respective claims to the people without reference to the party politics of the day.

Doubtless all the Governors who have been arrested or who may be hereafter will be re-leased upon parole, and will finally be allowed United States. We can find room for only on or two. But we take occasion to say to the ommanding officers and to the Government that the soldiers here have an intense desire to go home. They complain that they are detained unnecessarily, and kept in the dark as to the future. They complain, further, that they have not been paid for many months, and that their rations are nusatisfactory and scant. The letters we have received breather a very bitter spirit. Some of them are writ ten, evidently, by men of intelligence, who know what they are talking about, and we cannot but think that their complaint ought to be heeded, and their wrongs righted They say that if the Government has anything for them to do they are willing to do it, bu they protest against being kept here without an object. The ennui of the camp, with nothing to do, and no prospect of anything, is insupportable to them. If the Government is not repared to pay them off, and is detaining them for that purpose, then it ought to inform them of the fact at once, and satisfy their reasonable mands. We suggest respectfully to the officers in command to inform the soldiers, if the themselves know, what the intentions of the Government are in recard to them.

A Broken-Down System.

There is a directe lo which the doctors give many ames, but which few of them understand. It is simply cakness-a breaking down of the vital forces. What ver lie causes fand they are innumerable). Its sympoms are in the main the same. Among the most prom neut are extreme lactitude, loss of appetite, loss of ficeb and great mental depression. Indigestion and a S' m receing state of body and of mind. The common re mark in relation to persons in such a condition is the eally want is to or -rital strength; and as cortainly a win succeeds darkness they can recuperate their sysems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSPET TER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. IN La clear that a life-reviving Tonic is required in such cases as that the dying fiame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new apply of oil. Perfectly pure and nacenous, containing nothing but the most genial vegtable extracts, and combining the three grand ele-cise of virtue, and though marriage has cares, vet the single life has desires, which are more roublesome and more dangerous, and often end in sin, while the cares are but instances of duty and exercises of piety; and therefore if single has more necessities and more varieties of it; it is an exercise of more graces. Marriage is the proper scene of pietr and patience, of the duty of parents and the charity of relations; here kindness is spread abroad, and love is united and made firm as a centre. Marriage is the nursery of Heaven. The virgin sends prayers to God, but she carries but one soul to him; but the state of marriage fi is the number of the elect, and has in it the labor of love and the deli scies of friendship, the seings of society, and the union of hands and hearts. It has in it less of beauty but more of safety than the single life; it has more care but less danger; it is more merry and more and; it is fuler of sorrows and fuller of joys; it lies under more burdens, but it is supported by all the strength of love and charity, and those burdens are del ghtful. Marriage is the mother of the rid, and preserves kingdoms, and fills cities, and churcher and Heaven itself. Celibace, like the fly in the heart of the apple, dwells in per petual eweetness, but sits alone, and is confined and dies in singularity; but marriage. Eke the useful bee, builds a house and gathers sweetness from every flower, and labors and unites into societies and republics, and sends out armies, and feeds the world with delicacies, and obeys their king and keeps order, and exercises
